

Mee Cara

Positive Behaviour Support Assistant,
Frontier Support Services

What is a positive behaviour support assistant in social care?

Carers are responsible for supporting people with learning disabilities and mental health problems to live as independently as possible. They do this by providing a safe and secure environment, and by supporting people to meet their needs and to develop their skills and confidence. Carers also play a key role in promoting positive behaviour and supporting people to manage any challenging behaviours that they may experience. This is done by working in partnership with the person and their family, and by using a range of strategies and interventions that are tailored to the individual's needs and preferences. Carers also play a key role in promoting positive behaviour and supporting people to manage any challenging behaviours that they may experience. This is done by working in partnership with the person and their family, and by using a range of strategies and interventions that are tailored to the individual's needs and preferences.

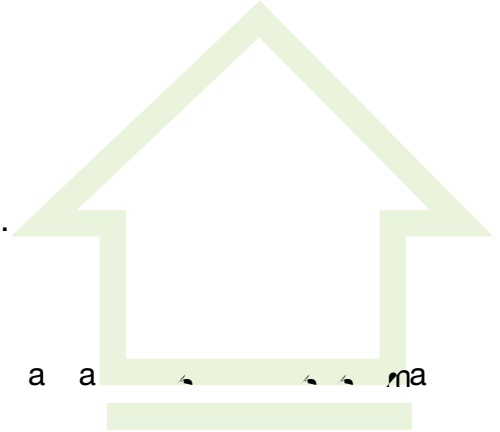

Can't find a job? (P, T, L, S).

Some of the things you can do to help yourself find a job are:

Where can I take her?

Can't find a job? - Some of the things you can do to help yourself find a job are:

Some of the things you can do to help yourself find a job are:

What would she say to others interested in a career in care?

Can't find a job? - Some of the things you can do to help yourself find a job are:

It's essential that you always respect the people you work with and show empathy.

